CHARACTERS IN NOLI ME TANGERE
	Juan Crisostomo Ibarra y Magsalin (Ibarra)	A wealthy young mestizo who has just returned to the Philippines after seven years of studying in Europe, Ibarra is sophisticated, highly esteemed, and very idealistic. The priests of San Diego all view him with great wariness on account of his highly liberal education and connections.
	Maria Clara	A woman of high social standing, she is thought to be the daughter of Capitan Tiago and goddaughter of Father Dámaso. She is actually the biological daughter of Father Dámaso, the product of a scandalous relationship between the old priest and Capitan Tiago's wife.
	Father Dámaso	Father Dámaso is an old, power-hungry, and shamelessly corrupt Spanish priest who has lived among the native Filipinos for nearly two decades. In spite of having spent all that time among them, the years have done nothing to endear him or develop any sympathy in him for his "flock."
